

YATP students make a big impact wherever they go.

The small, conservatory style program admits the best and the brightest students by auditions each year, most of whom train with the program for more than five years, or until graduation when they move on to both professional careers and outstanding university programs. Many of our alumni, who are working professionals today, credit YATP with giving them the strong foundations for the work in the arts.

Build confidence.

This camp is a special opportunity for all interested students to have the opportunity to coach with renowned Educational Director, Stephanie Riggs. Ms. Riggs has a 25+ year teaching history of young professionals and building children's self-confidence. Her alumni students work across the U.S. and Europe on stage and in film/T.V. projects, and many have gone on to study the arts at prestigious universities, most with scholarships. She is known for bringing the best out in her students and holding high expectations in a warm, supportive family style environment with small groups of students. She keeps the program small by choice, for students to have the most individualized educational experience, specific to their needs like no other in the Metroplex. YATP students work hard and achieve their goals through dedicated, intensive study over the years.
